

Forum Capital Partners

Forum Capital Partners is a fully independent firm that advises experienced private equity fund managers seeking to diversify and enhance their base of investors. The fund managers with whom we partner have diverse investment strategies, and we work with only a limited number of funds each year. As a result of our rigorous sourcing and due diligence process, investors can be assured that we will introduce quality investment opportunities and deliver continuous senior level involvement throughout the investment process.

We specialize in identifying high quality private fund managers with excellent track records who may not yet be well known to the institutional investor marketplace. These groups include cohesive management teams that have been in the business together for many years, groups that are spinning out of existing general partner sponsors or large financial institutions, and teams that have operated as fundless sponsors. Forum frequently invests its own capital alongside the institutional investors that commit to the funds we raise in order to ensure an alignment of interests.

Forum was founded by Jeffrey Stern and Robert Schwabe in 2001 as the successor to the private equity business they built and managed at CIBC Oppenheimer. They have worked together since 1994 and have raised more than $3.5 billion in private equity fund commitments for buyout, growth equity, venture capital and real estate funds worldwide.
